The loca of the Government of the Emperor has been deneed by his Majesty in person in a letter addressed to the Commander-in-Chief of our army after the taking of Paebla,
"Our object you know," (wrote the Emperor) "is not to inpose on the Mexicans a Government against their will, nor to

In recapitulation, Marquis, the United States acknowledges the right we had to make war on Mexico. On the other part we admit, as they to, the principle of non-intervention; this double postulate includes, as it seems to me, the elements of an agreement. The right to make war, which belongs, as Mr.

We fall back from that moment in the principle of non-intervention, and from that moment scoopt it as the rule of our conduct; our interest, no less than our honor, commands us to claim from all the miform application of it. Trusting in the spirit of equity which animetes the cabinet at Washington, we expect from it the assurance that the American people will themselves conform to the law which it invokes, by observing, in regard to Mexico, a spict neutrality. When you shall have informed me of the resolution of the French Government on this subject, I shall be able to indicate to you the results of our negotiations with the Emperor Maximilian for the return of pur troops.

MR. RIGELOW TO MR. SEWARD—[Extract.]

Legation of the United States, Paris, Jan. 30, 1865.

Sis: I have nothing fater from the State Department than the 5th of January. France is a prey to the wildest rumors, and to a sort of solicitude which has been compared, in my presence, by French people to that which prevailed in 1789. This is parily owing to the ignorance of what has occurred between the two governments, since the apparently critical moment at which the correspondence sent by the President to Congress closed. In spite of the pacific and triendly tone of the Emperor's discourse, the public persist in believing that the actual situation is r researced by that correspondence. To releve the anxiety a thire, the official green has announced the departure of M. Saillard to Mexico and Mr. Faverney to Weshington, with communications desired to prepare the way for the retirement of the French army from Mexico, and to satisfy President Johnson of the Emperor's loyal intentions to satisfy President Johnson of the Emperor's loyal intentions to satisfy President Johnson of the Emperor's loyal intentions from the Emperor, then the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and finally from Walesski. Though his name is not given, he is the third party referred to.

To enable you to see how completely these relations of Prance with the United States have awallowed up all other questions, I send you a number of journals of a more or less representative character. You will be struck, no doubt, as I have been, by the fact that the propriety of our requiring the Emperor to withdraw his army from Mexico is not questioned by any of them, nor do I remember to have beard it questioned by any one with whom I have conversed. It is universally concelled that the moment the indemnity, for which the Emperor professes to have gone to Marco is assigned to his expedition.

Extraction for the United States, Paine, Feb. 1, 1856.

Sir: In the diplomatic circle last evening at the palace, the Emperer asked me how my country people would like his speech at the opening of the Corps Legislatif. I replied that I had no doubt it would be read with general satisfaction. He then said he hoped we would soon have scool news from the United States. I said I thought we might expect good news as soon as pessible after your return to Washington. His Majesty asked if it was true, as the papers stated, that you would touch at Vera Gruz during your absence. I replied that I had not received a single line from Washington in reference to your trip, but that I had no reason to think it even probable that your voyage had any other purpose than recreation, which you could hardly obtain within reach of the telegraph, and that you probably thought the moment chosen the meet propitious that was likely soon to offer for a brief absence.

James Glennon, the Wife-Murderer Hanged-His Confession and Explanation of the Crime.

The extreme penalty of the law was yesterday passed upon James Glennon at Elisabeth, N. J., in which town, exactly a year since, he murdered his wife. The facts in connection with the crime are briefly these: Glemon was peared, the istan house and the prison throughd up to the scaf-fold in silence. The Deputy-Sheriff (Mr. A. A. Ward), hav-ing read the warrant, which specified that the execution should take place between the hours of 10 and 2, asked the prisoner if he had anything to say.

non then said: in more in the first degree. That is untrue, are been a course of murder in the first degree. That is untrue, it that I chared the death of my wife; but not intentionally, and at any premeditation. I only wish to add that I die a firm Rowithout any premeditation. I only wish to add that I die a firm Roman Catholic."

He then kissed the cross and knelt down while the priest in attendance read certain portions of the Ritual and answered with the responses in an undertone. His face was naby pale, but not a single evidence of fear or trepidation was apparent. His hands were folded in front of him, and they were as irmly clasped as though in the grasp of a friend. On rising from his knees he shock hands with and kissed the various officers of the jail, and sumbitted to the covering of the black cap with wonderful composure.

The Deputy Sheriff then read the usual formula, ending with the words. "And may the Lord have mercy on your soul."

At the response of "Amen," the body of the unfortunate man was suadenly jerked up by the falling of the heavy weight beneath, and offer a lew convalsive spasms, which were learful to witness. James Glennon ceased to exist.

Military Parade and Flag Presentation.

The 37th and 71st Regiments of National Guard were ordered out on parade yesterday afternoon. Each regiment tutord out with about 500 men, and both made a fine an pearance, marching well and executing the movements in good order. Col. Trafford of the 71st arrived with his comgood order. Col. Trafford of the Tist arrived with his com-mand in front of the City Hall at 3 o'clock, and executed the dress parade and other movements. Their neat blue uniforms, with shining breastplates and snowy-white belts presented an attractive feature to the speciale, and showed the regiment off to excellent advantage. The wings were covered by Com-panies A and D. Captains Clinton and Tyson, and the extreme front of the line was held by the regimental band and drum corps. The new band of the regiment, led by Mr. D. L. Down-ing was full and very effective, and their music, which was dispensed freely, met the popular approval to a remarkable decree.

The regiment being arranged in proper order, Mayor Hoff-man came forward and presented it with a beautiful stand of chlors, which cost $200. He addressed its commander on the consensor at these sort of new order of Crusaders—taking the place of the departing French troops.

The first part of my question, Is Italy prepared for war? is half answered in the foregoing. Prepared or not, it is a struggle for life. Six years of armed waiting for anxietions times has cost us dear—almost bankruptey. We scarcely see how we can wait; but to wait when the favored hour strikes would be to distrust the generous hand of Providence, to despair of the progressive age in which we live, to be down and die rather than strike a manful blow for life. We see not how we can live on as we are; to disarm is death; to maintain long our large arminents by see and land is bankruptey. No Ministry could suffer the hour to pass unimproved without sinking in less the gravest condemnation ever heaped on an Italian head. It would be treason to the dearest hopes of Imig. The news from Vienna is still warlike.

For two weeks we have had a General at Berlin—Govone—evidently sent there to arrange for a plan of emplagen. The sending him there has been loudly condenned by Italian journals as an act likely to induce Austria to retreat from the belligerent attitude she has assumed foward Prussia. But on the other hand, it may be urged that without Italian ald Prossia must have yielded to Austria, and that in any case the campaign in Germany would be so short that Italy could hope for success in Veneta only through a concert of action that would enable her to march at the sound of the first gan in Germany.

The Ministry is privately defended from the charge of indiscretion on another ground. The friends of the Ministry say: "We are treating with both the bellieuse Germans. We want Austria to cede Venice, give us a wife for Prince Humbert, and take compensations on the Danube. A little hesitancy in Austria may be overcome by a warlike demonstration at Berlin by the presence there of Gen. Govone."

This may be true; but it is none the more likely to be HOTEL TRIEF ARRESTED .- John Johnson, alias James Johnson, was on Wednesday evening arrested while coming down stairs at the Metropolitan Hotel, having in his pursension a water-proof clouk, satchel, silk nubrella and other articles, which proved to have been stolen from Room No. 345, occupied by Mrs. Anna B. Sergeant Potter and Officer Chanler, of the Essex Market Court Squad, subsequently ascertained that a portion of the stolen property was in the house No. 143 Chrystiesat, where the accused was in the holist of visiting. The house was searched by them, and a portion of the stolen property found there. A number of pawn tickets were also found, and on visiting the pawn-shop of Simpson & Co., at the corner of Bowery and Delancey-st., the remainder of the utsaing property was there found. Yesterday, Justice Mansfield committed the accused for trial. She is aged about 40 years, and has on several occasions been arrested on similar changes.

PROMPT POLICE OPERATION .- About 5 o'clock p. m Thursday, the Rev. Jacob Forsyth of Chicago, Ill., applied to Officer Martin of the Twenty sixth Precinct, stationed on the erment has taken steps to provide itself with money for the campaign.

All these things indicate a conviction on the part of the Ministry that war is at hand, and justify the common be-hief here that Govone has concluded a military alliance with Prussia, and arranged for a campaign in Venetia similtaneously with the campaign in Germany. The jour-hals tell us that in case of war, La Marmora, Cialdini, Du-rando and Govone will be the leading Generals. Of these the public will expect most from Cialdini. He has given more proof of military genius, though La Marmora has a wider experience. Troy Pier, foot of Canal-st., and stated that he had lost his Troy Pier, foot of Canai-st., and stated that he had lost his carpet-hag, containing clothing and papers valued at $500, a few moments before. The officer commenced a search, and having heard that a suspicious character had been seen leaving the Pier but a short time previous, followed him to the liquor store, No. 400 Washington-st., where the officer found secreted in a water-closet adjoining the premises the carpet-bag and its contents intact, and restored it to its owner. more proof of military genius, though wider experience.

Now, it may turn out that in all this Italy has simply been used by Prussia as a means of gaining some concessions from her rival, and Italy may have been drawn into a course of action which will defeat her own ends. It is probable, or at least possible, that the telegraph will have informed you of a peaceful change in Germany before this reaches you. rank, a butcher was yesterday arrested by Capt. Wilson of the Twenty first Precinct, on a charge of oruelty to animals. The prisoner was engaged in driving a cart containing about The presence was engaged in driving a cart containing about a dozen calves through the street, the animals being tied and thrown into the bottom of the cart. On reaching the Station Home one of the calves was found to be sufficiented. Frank was taken before Justice Connolly and fined $5.

Isaac Smithelner, Francis Kinney and John Roth were yesterday arrested for a similar offence and held to ball in the sum of $500 eachby Justice Dowling.
